

ENACT uses the power of interactive drama to promote healthy change and learning. Since 1987, ENACT has demonstrated its expertise fusing artistic excellence and clinical oversight successfully serving over 150,000 individuals throughout the five boroughs of New York City. ENACT focuses on building students' social and emotional skills transforming the classroom into a safe space where students are encouraged to explore the roles they play in school and life in order to develop self-awareness and transform behavior.

In-School Residencies

Typical In-School Residencies include:

- Two highly trained and supervised ENACT Teaching Artists that reflect the cultural diversity and diverse populations in the community.
- In-depth assessment with school leaders to identify key issues, curricular goals and scheduling needs.
- Weekly residency inclusive of 3 class periods per day, as well as planning and reflection time.
- Tailored weekly lesson plans developed alongside designated school teaching staff.
- Residencies address real-world issues like peer pressure, violence prevention and healthy relationships.
- Evaluation mechanisms including pre and post-residency surveys to support program evaluation and continued improvement.

After-School Residencies

After-school residencies include many of the elements of in-school residencies, but with more focus on theater elements. Extended residencies often culminate in a creative theater project. One or two teaching artists are provided based on need and number of participants.

Auditorium Performances

ENACT's auditorium performances are engaging and include a post-performance discussion. Plays are developed from relevant and emergent themes from the field and include topics like bullying and violence reduction. Consult office for current list of performances.

Drama Therapy/Counseling

For students that need additional support, ENACT's licensed clinicians provide Drama Therapy/Counseling sessions, which include: boy/girl groups, mixed groups and one-on-one counseling.

Front Line | Crisis Intervention

Unfortunately, in today's society, schools are often faced with acute instances of violence and other de-stabilizing events. ENACT's highly skilled drama therapists help participants identify difficult feelings, cope with the aftermath of trauma and help work towards a healthy community climate.
